Coming up with a Vision and Mission

Vision

...spiritual experience....all ages....joy of making music together....inclusive community

Mission

- Music Minister
- Enhance the worship services and support the sermon’s message
- Expand awareness
- Inclusive, LGBTQ+ welcoming, and intentionally anti-racist congregation.
- Fellowship, participation for all ages.
Vision Statement

Follen believes in the transcendent power of music. Our music program deepens our individual and collective spiritual experience, engaging congregants of all ages in the fellowship and joy of making music together. Through music we build and bind our inclusive community, care for each other, and work for justice.
Mission Statement

The mission of the Music Program is to:

- Minister to the Follen community through music.
- Enhance the worship services and support the sermon’s message with meaningful music that speaks to the soul and our shared Unitarian Universalist values.
- Explore how music can expand awareness and embody Follen’s commitment to being an inclusive, LGBTQ+ welcoming, and intentionally anti-racist congregation.
- Provide opportunities for musical growth, fellowship, and participation for all ages.
Core Values
What kind of music do we want at Follen?

- Music can be joyous, playful, funny, moving - but it shouldn't be boring.
- I want outstanding music of all genres and periods.
- I hope we will feature the beautiful organ prominently in our musical life.
- I've liked the emphasis on congregational singing with the choir (welcoming and inclusive) and a broadening of the repertoire.
- More instrumental guests. Stick pounding.
- I loved how Vivian pushed boundaries with different types of music.
- Explanations help you understand what the music is doing or what is behind it. Then it is easier to accept music we don’t like.
- I hate the teal hymnal.
- I love the teal hymnal. I’d like to see it more.
- I’m concerned about cultural appropriation; if we’re using music from other cultures, we must acknowledge who created it. Have those people help us be responsible consumers of that music.
- I’ve liked the emphasis on congregational singing with the choir (welcoming and inclusive) and a broadening of the repertoire.
- I want choir singing and communal singing.
- I like many genres, but want them all to be done with respect and love for the music and the congregation.
- Providing what the congregation wants, challenging the congregation when it should be challenged and pushing the congregation into places they didn’t know where we needed to go.
- A good music director can make a song grow on you with communication.

We need to have a good range of music balancing the familiar hymns/songs that have a deep root in the community with exposure to new things.
Choice of Music - What Did We Hear?

- The Follen community wants diverse music but not too much music that is challenging or pushes out of our comfort zone.
- Diverse music inherently means that not everyone will always like the music selected. And we need to be OK with that.
- The importance of being aware of cultural appropriation was brought up in multiple listening sessions.
Choice of Music - Newer vs Long-term Members

- Long-term members prefer having more traditional music
- Newer members prefer music from a diverse sources and styles
Core Values of the Follen Music Program

- Music at Follen draws from a diverse range of genres and sources, providing all with a connection to the familiar as well as exposure to the new.

- Music is integral to creating ritual and tradition for the Follen community. Care should be taken to maintain traditions, and they should be revisited and revised regularly.

- The music program helps us live out Follen’s commitment to being an inclusive, LGBTQ+ welcoming, and intentionally anti-racist congregation by lifting up diverse and under-represented voices while being conscious and careful about cultural appropriation.

- Music at Follen welcomes the congregation as worshippers, listeners, and active participants in meaningful music making.

- The Follen community values the professional expertise of the Music Director and commits to upholding our Covenant of Right Relations in building a relationship together.

How should decisions be made?

There has to be room for flexibility, growth, change.

The Music Director is a professional and needs to be respected for their expertise.

People need to hear you, be heard by you, and respected. The Music Director needs to communicate with the congregation and work to build the trust of the community.

We should be careful of too many cooks in the kitchen, but we must have opportunities for feedback when needed.

The Music Director should be aware that traditions need to be changed carefully; that some traditions serve the purpose of sustaining community beyond the time of the current Music Director.

There was not enough communication in the past. We need to make people feel included in the program.

There should be a music team or committee that specifically is there to offer counsel, support, feedback and act as a sounding board for the director of music.

It’s very tough to get this right. More transparency is needed. Find a good balance.

There has to be harmony. When there ceases to be harmony, no matter how much talent a person has, it won’t help the church. The director can have a free hand as long as it doesn’t upset people in the church.

Above all, there has to be harmony. When there ceases to be harmony, no matter how much talent a person has, it won’t help the church. The director can have a free hand as long as it doesn’t upset people in the church.

Noisy or pushy individuals shouldn’t be allowed to undermine the community agreements.

A congregational oversight group should be the curator and caretaker of this vision that we are creating right now. They hold that vision and try to uphold it.

I’m more interested in having that trust than seeing how decisions are made.

No one has a mandate - they have to cultivate trust and community.

The Music Director and Minister need a shared vision. WMAT gets to pass thoughts from congregation to them about music.

Not micromanagement, but have a music director who is curious about how it is going.
What did we hear?

- Many participants in listening sessions identified the need for a dedicated music team to provide guidance and support for the Music Director.

- In the survey, Follen members agreed that the music directors should have "significant autonomy," and even more agreed that a Music Team should provide counsel to the Music Director.
Governance

The Worship and Music Action Team (WMAT) collaborates with the Minister, Music Director, and Director of Religious Education to shape worship services. See Worship and Music Action Team Charter.

- With the support of WMAT, the Music Director collaborates with the Minister to support the worship experience with music that deepens the spiritual connection and enhances the message of the service.
- The Music Director collaborates with the Minister and Director of Religious Education to generate meaningful experiences that engage children and youth.
- The Minister has the ultimate authority over worship while respecting the professional experience of the Music Director.

To support and steward the Follen Music Program, there shall be a lay-leadership Music Team, a sub-committee of WMAT, that provides counsel, support, and feedback for the Music Director.
Music Team

Support the Follen Music Program
- Stewards of our Music Vision
- Uphold commitment to inclusivity
- Curate traditions

Support & Advise the Music Director
- Advise on program choices
- Share feedback
- Organ fund and other budget decisions

Support the Follen Community
- Open communication
- Collaborate with other Action Teams
- Connect to Wider Community
Annual Musical Production/ Event
How do we feel about the Operetta?

I loved seeing all the kids working together.

A good leader could conceive of something new.

I think we have to acknowledge the problems with the content.

It was precious as a community builder - a chance to love everyone’s kid as if they were your own.

There should have been ways for any kid who wanted to be in it, to be in it.

It was magical because it wasn’t about being the best but instead about building community.

Gilbert & Sullivan does not reflect our values.

Inclusivity is key.

Some people object to G and S because it’s so dated; I think it could be a good history lesson. Was always purposefully overdone and laughed at.

The children who couldn’t shine elsewhere could shine there.

What’s important is a big culminating event that involves everyone who wants to participate that is challenging and complex and rewarding and meaningful.

Gilbert & Sullivan is also a great teaching experience to understand satire and to play around with it. I’m thinking differently about it now after hearing people share.

Presenting something with content we don’t agree with because we’ve always done it makes me uncomfortable.

I’m less morally offended by G & S than I am by some of the hymns we sing. It’s ok because that’s how culture rolls. G & S is ok because every character is satirized.

Some have loved it and it is their main focus, and others can’t participate because of conflict or were bothered by the gender roles and limited range that the operetta represented.

When you get to be in junior choir, there is nothing more exciting than to see the seniors singing away and thinking “I want to attain that.”

I've been struck by how much the kids love tradition. Kids get attached to things like that, it feels like home.

Some have loved it and it is their main focus, and others can’t participate because of conflict or were bothered by the gender roles and limited range that the operetta represented.
Operetta - What Did We Hear?

- The Follen community supports an annual musical that builds community, highlights our youth, and includes all who are able to participate.

- The Follen community is not of one mind regarding the appropriateness of Gilbert and Sullivan.

![Bar chart showing responses to Follen musical productions]

- Follen should put on an annual musical.
- Gilbert and Sullivan's operettas are inconsistent with our values.
- Follen should continue to put on Gilbert and Sullivan's operettas.
Operettas - Newer vs. Long-term Members

A majority of members, and especially new members, do not feel strongly about continuing to put on Gilbert and Sullivan operettas.

Newer members are less likely to agree that the Operettas are consistent with our values.
How has another congregation grown their repertoire?

2018 – Shrek! The Musical
2017 – The Gondoliers
2016 – The Magic Flute
2015 – The Wizard of Oz
2014 – Bye Bye Birdie
2013 – The Mikado
2012 – The Sound of Music
2011 – Pirates of Penzance
2010 – The Music Man
2009 – Godspell
2008 – H.M.S. Pinafore
Annual Music Production/Event

The Follen Music Program sponsors an annual community-wide musical event supported by lay volunteers. The event showcases youth, provides opportunities for all to participate regardless of musical ability, and builds community through shared experience. The Music Director, in collaboration with the Music Team, has the responsibility and authority to choose each year’s community production/event, which may continue Follen’s tradition of Gilbert and Sullivan operettas and/or draw from new sources. The Music Director, Music Team, and participants will devote time to reflecting on the content of their production and its impact on others.
Thank You
